From UCLA, with K-LOVE

Earl Duque has been here just shy of a year, starting as an IT Express consultant last July. He now works for the IT Service Management group as a ServiceNow application support specialist.

Born and raised in Southern California, Earl spent several years at UCLA, first as a student in International Development, then as staff. He tried on a lot of roles: RA supervisor, event program support, sustainability coordinator, safety & security coordinator, assignment coordinator, and contract management. Earl wasn't planning to leave UCLA but his then-fiancé and now wife, Rebecca, whom he met in college, moved north, so he followed. His first job in NorCal was at K-LOVE radio station in Rocklin where, among other responsibilities, he became the ServiceNow developer.

He wasn't an IT person to begin with, but Earl had an epiphany when he was a contract manager at UCLA. They had too many paper processes, too many useless spreadsheets, and he wanted to consolidate and automate them. He taught himself Visual Basic for Applications, SQL, and C++. "The moment I saw that we no longer had to use a paper process and how fast and efficient we had become, I was hooked."

Now working in Client Services, he has already tripled the student developer team, is moving software into the request catalog, and yes, automating forms. In May, Earl attended the ServiceNow conference, Knowledge 18, with 50,000+ others. While there, he competed in the Creator Con Hackathon and was a finalist! Here's his submission.

Earl isn't a stranger to competition. A few years back, he and his friend won a BMW 3 Series on a national BMW/YouTube contest. The challenge was to make a video about the car in 5.9 seconds (here's their entry). His friend kept the car and he got half its value in cash.

Earl and Rebecca celebrated their one-year anniversary recently, and they now have an Australian labradoodle puppy, Bodhi. When Earl isn't traveling and visiting family, he loves to play board games; one of his favorites is Caverna, but he plays Kingdom Builder a lot because it's his wife's first choice. Game playing and technology aside, Earl likes human interaction too. Stop by his cube at Cousteau and say hi.
